

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

ALFRED BAKER SPALDING (d. 1942)

The Faculty of the Stanford University School of Medicine deeply regrets the death of Doctor Alfred Baker Spalding, Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, on November 27, 1942, at the age of 68. Doctor Spalding joined the Stanford Faculty in 1912 and became a nationally recognized authority in his specialty. He created an outstanding department of obstetrics and gynecology.

His untiring and sincere efforts in behalf of the Medical School during its formative period and his sound teaching throughout his career will be gratefully remembered by the medical faculty and his former residents and students.
